

SOCIETY

The Caramadres: From left, Michael, 15, Amelia, 13, and Danniell, 9, with parents Joe and Paula.

KERI DUCHARME

UNITED WAY OF RHODE ISLAND

BAILEY-GATES

Joe Caramadre, president of Estate Planning Resources in Providence, and his family received the United Way's highest honor, the Tocqueville Society Philanthropy Award, at a party May 19.

Before more than 140 guests at the United Way's new office overlooking the Woonasquatucket River, United Way board chairman John Warren, of The Washington Trust Co., said "Joe and [his wife, Paula,] have been referred to as 'guardian angels,' as they have become the last resort for many charities, which would not have kept their doors open if not for [the Caramadres'] intervention."

The award was a framed photo by Burrillville High sophomore Mike Bailey-Gates, who won an art contest for students to show how they "LIVE UNITED."

